

NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL SCALE ASSOCIATION

December 17, 2020

Dear Members:

As we approach our coming date for our Spring technical conference in April, the NISA board has been meeting monthly going over what our options are to hold a safe and beneficial technical meeting. Our meeting is to be held in Fort Myers, Florida, which as of now, has no travel restrictions but advises the public not to gather in groups larger than 10 people. This obviously is making things difficult to plan a technical conference.

Though we are still a few months out and things could change by April, especially with the vaccine rolling out, NISA has decided to plan for either an in person technical conference and/or a virtual conference via Zoom. We will make our decision by our February teleconference meeting on which route we are going to take for this meeting.

Our goal for the NISA membership, is to have a beneficial conference but also a safe one. We will continue on our path to plan for either style of conference, but we will also decide on which route we are going to take soon in order for the membership and guest speakers to make their travel plans

NISA will continue to keep the membership informed as we go along. For now, we wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Healthy holiday season to come!!

Sincerely,

Ryan Garnhart
NISA President
